Preface

The name of Parsons is English and was first known as a distinct family name in the 13th Century in the counties of Southern England and Ireland. The origin of the name is unknown. Some suppose it to be sons of par or sons of a parson, but this is only a guess. While there are few of any family that rise to eminence, I find from the genealogical records many by the name of Parsons who have been prominent in England as Knights, Baronets and Noblemen. I also find they have been supporters of all that is honorable in the affairs of England and America.

I have given very little attention to tracing our lineage through our English ancestors, although some have a just pride in doing so. Some are fortunate in tracing their lineage to William the Conqueror. This is true of many English families. I think we Americans are interested more in the hardships endured in England, which induced our forefathers to seek a refuge across the sea. We are interested in their settlement along the Atlantic Coast with all their struggles and triumph for civil, religious and educational improvement and the founding of a Republic.

The period of settlement by the Parsons family in New England, and some who settled in Maryland and Virginia, 1635-1660, corresponds with the reign of King Charles I. and the rule of Lord Protector Oliver Cromwell of England. During this period England was engaged in a Civil War. The Parsons family were Puritans and lovers of liberty, both civil and religious. This explains the yearning, in common with other immigrants in Colonial times, to embark for America where they hoped for a peaceful home with more civil liberty, and the worship of God according to the dictates of their conscience.

In a letter written by Samuel Holden Parsons from Middletown, Conn., October 23, 1863, he states: "The earliest name of Parsons in this country were, Joseph, Benjamin and Hugh of Springfield, Mass., in 1636. Robert of Lynn, Mass., 1638, and John, 1680. William, of Boston, 1643. Thomas, Richard and Nicholas, of Windsor, Conn., 1640-1649. Samuel, of East Hampton, Long

I., thence to Gloucester, in 1650. John, of York, Maine, 1677. Philip, of Enfield, Conn., 1697." He also states in another letter written about this time: "Samuel and Benjamin of Springfield, Mass., sons of Benjamin, of Springfield, settled in Enfield, Conn., in 1680." He also states: "Where Philip was born, where he resided before settling in Enfield, I have not ascertained. He had allotments of land in Enfield April 1, 1712. I have traced 300 descendants to Philip of Enfield." Other lists omit Hugh of Springfield, Mass., Robert and John of Lynn, Mass., and Richard and Nicholas of Windsor, Conn.

Joseph and Benjamin of Springfield, Mass., were brothers. The first was known as Cornet Joseph, and his brother as Deacon Benjamin. The descendants of Cornet Joseph have been recorded by the late Henry Parsons, a lawyer of New York City, who published two volumes entitled "Parsons Family." These volumes contain many valuable historical facts of the Parsons family in England and America aside from the genealogical record. Mr. Henry Parsons told the writer there was no blood relationship between the above lines, and the line of Philip Parsons. Among the marriages we have Mary, great-granddaughter of Deacon Benjamin, and Lieutenant Thomas by his first marriage. We have also Anna, oldest daughter of Lieutenant Thomas by his second marriage, and Peter Parsons, great-grandson of Deacon Benjamin. Anna was a sister of Eli and Thomas, whose descendants are recorded in this volume.

Eli and Thomas Parsons were sons of Thomas Parsons of Enfield, Conn., known as Lieutenant Thomas, both born in Enfield; Eli in 1756, Thomas in 1775. They were grandsons of Philip who settled in Enfield about 1697. The mother of Eli and Thomas was Lydia, daughter of John and Lydia Booth of Enfield, by their father's second marriage. Lieutenant Thomas was engaged in the business of tanning, having succeeded his father Philip. Lieutenant Thomas was a member of the Congregational Church. During his lifetime there was a movement in which a considerable number of the New England Congregationalists sought a more literal observance of the commandments of the Bible in life and in worship. The second Congregational Church was organized in Enfield, known as the Strict or Separate Church, and Lieutenant Thomas was chosen a Deacon.

The new church movement was not permanent, and he returned to the First Congregational Church, of which he died a member. He undoubtedly was a conscientious Christian with a good standing in the community. He seems to have been a prominent man in Enfield.

Eli Parsons, the first son, was a soldier in the Revolutionary War. He was honorably discharged and received a pension. He was twice married, first to Rebecca Allen of Enfield; second to Huldah Kellogg of Westfield, Mass. All his children were born in Enfield. His occupation was a tanner and currier. He moved to Columbia, Bradford Co., Pennsylvania, in 1800 and purchased 400 acres of land at Columbia Cross Roads. He soon became identified with the church people, and was active in establishing the First Baptist Church in Troy in 1809, and was chosen a Deacon.

Thomas Parsons, a younger son, married Anna Osborne of East Windsor, Conn. Alfred and Harvey were born in Enfield. In 1802 the family moved to Franklin, Delaware County, N. Y. Anna, Thomas Osborne, Mary and Thomas Eli were born in Franklin. The father erected a sawmill on one of the streams flowing into the Ouleout Creek which he operated for many years. This was near what is now known as North Franklin, on a part of his farm. Some remains of the old dam are still visible. He was an ingenious mechanic and led a very useful life as a mill man, builder, general mechanic and farmer. He was a communicant in the Congregational Church in Franklin village, where he and his family worshiped.

Enfield, Conn., is an old town located in the Connecticut River valley nine miles south of Springfield, Mass. It is a resident district of barely 400 population at the present time.. It is only one and one half miles south of Thompsonville, Conn., a manufacturing town of 10,000 population, whose principal industry is the manufacture of carpets. In the Colonial period, Enfield Township included Springfield, Mass. Enfield was purchased from the Indians, and settled by Massachusetts people about 1680. It was under the government of Massachusetts for many years. Enfield

Street is a part of the principal highway between Springfield and Hartford, and is the path of the trolley line. The long north and south street is wide, and the southern section turns to the west, crossing Bement's Brook. The Parsons tannery was located on this brook on the south side of the street. The old buildings have disappeared. On the east side of Enfield street, in the center of the town, is a green, and facing this from the east, is the Congregational Church, a neat, white, wooden building, attractive both outside and inside. Opposite the church is the Town Hall, which was a church at one time. Our ancestors no doubt worshiped in this building.

"Enter into His gates with thanksgiving and into His courts with praise:

Be thankful unto Him and bless His name.

For the Lord is good; His mercy is everlasting; and His truth endureth to all generations."

A short distance north of the church, on the east side of the street is the Enfield Street Cemetery, where the graves of a number of Philip and Anna Parsons' descendants may be found, including their son Lieutenant Thomas Parsons and members of his family. These graves are marked by plain brownstone markers. The inscriptions on the stones are as follows:

1. Ebenezer, son of Philip and Anna Parsons, died Nov. 2, 1746. This stone was broken and in bad condition.
2. In memory of Mrs. Mary, wife of Mr. Thomas Parsons, who died July 15, 1752, aged 37 years.
3. In memory of Mrs. Sarah, daughter of Mr. Thomas and Mrs. Mary Parsons, who died Apr. 11, 1772, aged 24 years.
4. In memory of Henry, son of Mr. Thomas and Mrs. Lydia Parsons, who died Oct. 1, 1775, aged 9 years.
5. In memory of Thomas, son of Mr. Thomas and Mrs. Lydia Parsons, who died Oct. 16, 1775, in his 18th year.
6. In memory of two sons of Mr. Eli and Mrs. Rebecca Parsons, namely, Henry, who died Oct. 15, 1778, in his 4th year, also Eli, who died Oct. 31, 1778, in his 2nd year.

7. In memory of Mrs. Lydia, wife of Mr. Thomas Parsons, who died June 4, 1780.
8. In memory of Asher Parsons who died March 16, 1785, in the 26th year of his age.
9. In memory of Mr. Elijah Parsons who died Aug. 3rd, 1797, aged 52 years.
10. In memory of Jerusha, wife of Elijah Parsons, who died Apr. 26, 1826, aged 79 years.
11. This stone is erected in memory of Deacon Thomas Parsons who departed this life Dec. 21, 1811, in his 94th year. "Not eye nor ear has seen or heard, The best that for the meek remain, Of what the Saints but taste below."
12. In memory of Mrs. Jemima Parsons, relic of Mr. Thomas Parsons, who died June 10th, 1828, aged 85 years.
13. In memory of Benjamin Parsons who died July 15, 1812, aged 50 years. Marble slab.

Lieutenant Thomas Parsons published a record of his family about the year 1800. This was printed on light paper about one foot square, and preserved in a roll. He states he is the son of Philip and Anna Parsons, and records his three marriages and his children.

Samuel Holden Parsons and David Parsons Holton began collecting records of the Parsons families about the year 1855, and continued their work about twenty years. They were instrumental in establishing a society where the records would be preserved. "The New York Genealogical and Biographical Society of New York City was conceived in, and born out of, the minds of its incorporators in 1869, at the home of its first Vice-President Dr. David Parsons Holton, and was incorporated under the laws of the state of New York that year."

It is the practice of many families to hold family reunions. This is commendable, and in one instance a history was prepared and printed. I refer to the History of the Descendants of Hannah Rockwell Parsons, 1885, by the late Burton S. Parsons, a pamphlet of only four pages, but containing much history of that branch of the family. It is well written and entertaining.

In 1915 I employed the late J. Allen Kibbe, a genealogist of Warehouse Point, Conn., to assist me in the earlier records. Some of Mr. Kibbe's ancestors were related to the family of Lieutenant Thomas Parsons by marriage. Mr. Kibbe lived near Enfield, and his services were valuable in securing accuracy for the earlier generations.

Aside from the ties of blood, there existed in the families of Eli Parsons and Dr. Alfred Parsons a warm friendship. This began in 1825 when the nephew of Eli Parsons, then a young doctor, began the practice of medicine in Columbia Township and continued when he moved to Troy Township, some ten years later. I remember very well the cordiality between my father's family and the descendants of Eli Parsons, also the closer descendants of Thomas Parsons, my grandfather.

It has given me a feeling of satisfaction to see this genealogical work progress, notwithstanding it has necessarily been slowly recorded. I have met with cordial response from an intelligent people. I am especially indebted to the late Mrs. Bertha S. (Ira A.) Parsons who furnished me much material at the start, and continued to assist me. Miss A. Belle Carnochan has given valuable aid. There are many others whose names I might mention whose services have been greatly appreciated.

Those who consult these pages will no doubt find errors. They will be disappointed in not finding all the records which belong to these families. Forgiveness for these offences is humbly invoked in so far as they relate to my negligence.

JOHN A. PARSONS.

The Records

The records in this work are arranged chronologically. Beginning with Philip the families are in groups. The generations are indicated by a figure following the Christian name. The children are recorded following the record of the parents. The record of some of the children, including those deceased in childhood, are complete in the list. Other records of the children are enlarged on the pages following and include their descendants. A complete individual index will be found at the close of the volume.

PHILIP PARSONS

Philip Parsons

PHILIP¹ PARSONS of Enfield, Conn., b. ; m.
Anna about 1707. She d. July 15, 1752.

Philip Parsons was made a Sergeant in Enfield train band by the Company. It was the highest military office in the gift of the Company. Philip Parsons, then doubtless a young man, received a grant of land in Enfield in the spring of 1698. Land grants were made to the sons of settlers at about the age of 16 years, but to no others of that age. In 1712 he was granted a piece of land at the lower end of Town Street 14 rd. by 13 rd. for a tan yard. This land was on Bement's Brook and bounded north by the highway. Here he established his home and business of tanner, buying more and more of the land until he owned quite a tract on the south side of the highway connecting Enfield Street with King Street.

Philip Parsons seems to have been a popular and trusted man in his community for his fellow citizens kept him in town offices most of his life. Several years he was town assessor, collector of taxes, etc. The town evidently thought that he was a safe man to trust. The date of his death is nowhere given and of his wife very little is known except as the mother of his children. All published accounts of their deaths are estimates or mere guesses.

The will of Thomas Parsons, dated Nov. 28, 1807, probated Jan. 9, 1812, mentions wife Jemima and children Benjamin, Levi, Elisha, Eli, Thomas, Anna (Parsons) dec., Lydia (Abby), Mary (Pease) dec., Achsah (Pease) dec., Huldah (Allen) dec., Elijah, dec.

Distribution of Estate of Thomas Parsons gives estate to Heirs of Mary Pease, dec., heirs of Achsah Pease, heirs of Anna Parsons, to Lydia Abby, to Levi, to heirs of Benjamin, to Thomas, to Elisha; date Dec. 20, 1813.

Thomas Parsons was made Lieutenant of First Company train band of Enfield, in October, 1765. He was deacon of the Second Church of Enfield for many years. This was the strict Congregational or Separate church. A short time before his death he returned to the First Church of which he died a member.

He was, like his father, a tanner and currier and lived on the old homestead. He must have been highly respected for he filled many town offices of trust. Although it is not certain that he performed any military service yet his patriotism is beyond question, according to the record of his life and services.

PETER AND ANNA PARSONS

ANNA³ PARSONS, (Thomas², Philip¹), b. May 8, 1754, in Enfield, Conn., d. Sept. 8, 1803, in Franklin, N. Y.; m. Sept. 16, 1773, PETER, son of Moses, grandson of Samuel and great-grandson of Deacon Benjamin PARSONS of Springfield, Mass. Mr. and Mrs. Parsons settled in Franklin, N. Y., in 1800. Mr. Harvey Parsons of Franklin paid the following tribute to Peter Parsons under date of Jan. 5, 1855:

"Peter Parsons was one of our best men. He emigrated from Hartford County, Conn., in the year 1800, and settled in Vly Brook, one mile northeast of William A. Miller's home. The writer being no nearer related to him than cousin thinks he can speak truthfully of him; and many of his old scholars will dwell a moment with glad recollection on the recalling of his name.

"The writer was a scholar of his, and while the good man lived in this town, was his near neighbor. His bent of mind was manifested in his instituting a Juvenile Library in his District in the Case Settlement, now North Franklin. Not many years after his death, which was in 1814, were to be seen four young men, his scholars, who are now respectable physicians. Ever of feeble health, he practiced the virtues of frugality and the laudable economy. He found a healthful employment in the use of his surveyor's compass, though tilling his little farm was his principal employment. Of reputation for correctness, he was often called into other towns to survey. He surveyed and remarked the boundaries of this town, being employed by the supervisor, Abijah Seely, Esq. I remember his house in the cold season used statedly to be filled with the growing children of the poor, receiving instruction from him gratis, in reading, writing and spelling. He was a writer, clear and forcible. As a Justice of the Peace he 'wrought righteousness.' His opinion was sought as an oracle. He loved the 'feast of reason and the flow of soul.' He enjoyed the friendship of his neighbors, and whenever in their company would show his train of mind in searching for cause, while they spoke of effect. A lover of learning, he willed more than a tenth of his property to the Academy that he once attended. He had no children. His widow died the consort of Mr. Russell Foote, who lives yet. In person he was tall and slim. His turn of thought has given light to many who delight to call his memory blessed.

PETER AND ANNA PARSONS

The curious reader will see his name on a marble slab about midway between Rev. Mr. Morgan's church and the new Institute building.

"Much, we feel, is due to such worthies as Peter Parsons, for training the minds of the young, and for laying the foundation which sustains our Franklin institutions, moral and religious. Let all who read his worth be stimulated to excel. He died September 12, 1814, in the forty-first year of his age and was buried in Franklin."

ELI³ PARSONS

ELI³ PARSONS, (Thomas², Philip¹), b. Jan. 24, 1756, in Enfield, Conn.; m. (1) Nov. 10, 1774, Rebecca, b. in Enfield, Mar. 31, 1757, daughter of Ebenezer and Rebecca (Bartlett) Allen. She died in Enfield May 12, 1785. He m. (2) Apr. 12, 1787, Huldah Kellogg of Westfield, Mass., recorded in Enfield. She died in Columbia, Bradford Co., Pa., Jan. 1834. Eli Parsons and his son Eli Parsons came into Columbia Township, Bradford Co., Pa., in the year 1799, and took up 400 acres under Connecticut title. They began improvements and built a log cabin near Columbia Cross Roads. In the fall Mr. Parsons returned East, Eli the son remaining and chopping a fallow during the winter. The next year the father arrived with the family. Mr. Parsons was a tanner and currier by occupation, and carried on that business as soon as he could make the necessary arrangements. In the meantime he began clearing his land, which, owing to the defective Connecticut title, he was obliged to purchase a second time, paying at the rate of one dollar, or a bushel of corn, per acre. He continued to reside in Columbia until his death, which occurred Nov. 11, 1834. He was a pensioner of United States under act of 1832 for faithful service in the Revolutionary War. His biographer says of him: "He had long been distinguished for benevolence and piety. His death will be deeply deplored by the church as well as by relations and his numerous friends." He was deacon in the Baptist Church of Troy, Pa. The original building stood in the old part of Glenwood Cemetery where he and his wife Huldah Kellogg were buried. His grave has been recognized and marked by the daughters of the American Revolution, Oscohu Chapter, Pennsylvania, State Number 73. The sons of Eli Parsons were large boned men and averaged about six feet in height. They had light complexion, light hair and blue eyes.

Mrs. Crowell spent a very useful life. She was loved for her fine Christian character, her kindly nature and her untiring industry. In her long and varied life she was active in the essentials, and left a record to be emulated. When in Troy, she united with the Church of Christ and was an active member. She settled in Alliance, Ohio, in 1901. The Crowell W. C. T. U. of Alliance, organized after her death, was named in her memory. After her marriage to Mr. Amdrup, in 1901, the remainder of her life was spent in Alliance,

Ohio, where she and her husband conducted the leading book and stationery store in that place. Mrs. Amdrup possessed more than ordinary executive business ability, and was a very successful leader, especially among the young people. Under her direction a reading and game room was established for the Y. W. C. T. U. She was President of the Union, and while at its head the organization experienced a marvelous growth, and attained the largest membership of any "Y" in the United States. Mrs. Amdrup also had a marked talent in art, and the family prizes some oil paintings, floral and landscape, which she finished a short time before her death. That she was much loved was shown by the array of floral offerings, coming as they did from more than fifty friends and organizations, bearing silent tribute to the character of one, who in two short years could gain so strong a hold on the hearts of the people.

GERTRUDE MAY⁷ CROWELL, (Alma Estella⁶ Jones, Almira⁵ Parsons, Eli, Jr.⁴, Eli³, Thomas², Philip¹), b. July 25, 1876, in Smithfield Township, Bradford County, Pa.; m. After leaving Troy Mrs. Whitacre spent seven years in the employ of The Herendeen Mfg. Company at Geneva, N. Y., in charge of their Printed Matter Department, and two years as Assistant Business Manager of the Geneva Daily Times. At the time of her marriage she was in the Auditing Department of the Lake Shore Railroad in the Cleveland office.

Mrs. Whitacre has given much time to religious and literary work, her writings, comprising both fiction and poetry, being largely for religious publications. The following poem recently written shows something of the character and style of her writings and will appeal to all mothers.

SAFEGUARDING THE BOY.

There's dirt on my nice new brussels,
And mars on my hard-wood floor,
There's finger-prints on the woodwork,
And a smear on the front glass door;
There's relics of pop-corn and candy
And fruit in generous store,
And games that bespeak an evening
Of frolic and feasting galore.

You may guess we've somewhere a youngster
Of the 'teen age species called "boys,"
Whose highest conception of pleasure
Is eating, and making a noise,—
And having but one of the species,
We draw on our good neighbors' stock,
And borrow, to make up the shortage,
A lad here and there 'round the block.

There are times when I'm tempted to chide them,
Grown weary of dirt and of noise,
But discretion hastens to check me,
Because "Dad" is "one of the boys."
And I know that the onrushing future
For manhood will soon claim our lad,
Where out in the turmoil of action
He'll wrestle with good and with bad,

And when in the thick of the conflict
He pauses 'twixt error and right,
May the thought of the home of his boyhood
Be a saving beacon of light
That shall guide his feet at life's cross-roads
Into the pathway of truth,
Because of the unconscious standards
Surrounding his life during youth.

Then the wear and the tear of the carpets
And even the mars will bring joy,
If by making home-life attractive
We safeguard the life of our boy.

The greater part of Mrs. Whitacre's work outside the home is devoted to a large Bible Class in the Christian Bible School. She has been the teacher for seven or eight years. The Class is composed of men and women of all ages and enrolls over four hundred and fifty members. Class name:—The Loyal Bereans. Class Motto:—"The Whole Bible to the Whole World is our Whole Duty." Mrs. Whitacre's consecration in this noble work brings results. Many are born into the Kingdom of Christ and added to the church for Christian growth and service.

TO THE PARSONS
May your heritage be
A light to shine
Over the paths
For all mankind.
And be likened to
The bubbling spring,
Or the vines that to
The Pink Jasper cling.

I speak of the Pink Jasper on account of its durability. It is one of the hardest of stones. It is not quarried at Pipestone, but near here. We have our porch built of it and two pillars for gate posts. I understand there is some of this Pink Jasper in the wall surrounding the city of Jerusalem.

Very soon after his death a meeting of the Bar of Bradford County was called and Judge A. C. Fanning appointed a committee to draft a proper memorial to his memory. It is as follows:

MEMORIAL

To the Honorable A. C. Fanning, President Judge of the Courts of Bradford County, Pennsylvania:

JAMES PARSONS

The committee appointed by your Honorable Court at a meeting of the members of the bar, in memory of the late Eli Burton Parsons, held February 21, 1910, respectfully present the following memorial:

The death of Eli Burton Parsons, late of the borough of Troy, on the 17th day of February last, removed from the Bar of Bradford County its oldest member in years and time of service. At the time of his death he was over eighty-five years of age, having been born in Columbia township, this county, on the 3rd day of November, 1824.

His ancestors were of old Colonial stock and his paternal grandfather, Eli Parsons, was a Revolutionary soldier. Burton Strait, his maternal grandfather, was a soldier of the war of 1812. Eli Parsons, the grandfather, came to Bradford County from Connecticut in the year 1800 and settled on what is now known as the Stephen G. Gernert farm just north of Columbia Cross Roads. His son, James Parsons, the father of Eli Burton Parsons, retained the original homestead, and it was here that Mr. Parsons was born and spent his boyhood days.

After obtaining what education he could in the district schools, he attended the Troy Academy, walking daily from his home to Troy, a distance of about four miles, for that purpose. He studied law in Troy under Stephen Pierce, a noted lawyer of those days, and was admitted to the Bar of Bradford County on the 7th day of February, A. D. 1849. His legal education was completed at the law school at Cherry Valley, New York, and in 1850, while attending that school, took the examination for admission to practice in the Supreme Court of the State of New York, and passed without difficulty. After completing his studies, he commenced the practice of law in Troy, and maintained an office there until the time of his death, a period of sixty years.

At the time of Mr. Parsons' admission to our Bar John N. Conyngham was President Judge, and the period of his activities as a lawyer covered the whole of the terms of service of six judges, and a part of the terms of two, Judge Conyngham and Judge Fanning; only three judges having been on our bench before Judge Conyngham. At the time of his admission many of the most able and distinguished men who have graced our Bar were active practitioners, and others of like caliber were admitted at about the same time. Among these were William Elwell, Paul D. Morrow, Ulysses Mercur and David Wilmot. Coming in contact with them as he did in his practice, and being naturally adapted to the work of the profession, he early developed a measure of ability that made him recognized as one of the leading lawyers of the county.

Not only was Mr. Parsons active in his chosen profession, but he frequently made business ventures which were generally successful. He was at one time the owner of the famous Watkins Glen, which he disposed of at a price which netted him considerable profit. He obtained a charter for supplying water to Troy Borough, and constructed a water system there in 1880. In 1893, the borough council, considering the Parsons' system inadequate to furnish the borough with water for fire purposes, and relying upon a decision of the Supreme Court which gave them the right to do so, established a competing water system. Mr. Parsons insisted that the Supreme Court was wrong in its decision, and filed a bill in equity to restrain the borough from supplying water. A long litigation followed, during the progress of which the Supreme Court reversed itself, and upheld his contention. The matter was settled by the borough buying the Parsons' system in 1902.

For many years Mr. Parsons was identified with almost every case of note arising in the western part of the county, and was eminently successful as a trial lawyer. Among the members of the bar his ability was recognized, and his advice frequently was sought by them, as well as by his clients. When interested on behalf of his clients, he was untiring as a worker, and this without regard to the remuneration he might receive. In the trial of cases he was aggressive and resourceful, and commanded the respect and fear of his antagonists. He was upright and honorable in his professional dealings, and treated his opponents with fairness and consideration, bearing no malice toward them for blows delivered in a fair fight.

In the community in which he has resided for so many years he will be greatly missed. He attracted men to him and had a personality that commanded attention wherever he was. The friendships that he made among his business and professional associates were close and lasting, and many there are who mourn for him as a friend who cannot be replaced. In paying to him this tribute we can be assured that we are honoring one who, in life, was worthy of our confidence, friendship, love and respect.

By the Committee:

RODNEY A. MERCUR,
I. N. EVANS,
WM. T. DAVIES,
H. K. MITCHELL,
J. W. STONE.

graduated from the Geneva Medical College, Geneva, N. Y., in 1844, and began the practice of medicine in Troy, Pa., in 1845. He was successful in his chosen profession until ill health compelled him to give up his practice. He was interested in the Presbyterian Church, especially the music, as he was a good singer. He died at the home of his brother, Dr. Alfred Parsons, in Troy.

Churches in Franklin, N. Y., where Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Parsons, their children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren worshipped:

The First Congregational Church was organized Oct. 6, 1793, by Rev. Huntington, a missionary from Connecticut, with twenty-eight members. The first pastor was Rev. Abner Benedict. The society was incorporated in 1808 under the name of The First Congregational Religious Society of Franklin, N. Y. Services were held by the Society from 1793 to 1826, when the Church became Presbyterian in government and discipline under the Chenango Presbytery, and continued so until 1842. At this time the Church withdrew from the Presbytery and continued a Congregational Church. However, the withdrawal was not unanimous, some of the people desiring to continue as Presbyterians. The Congregational services were continued in the house of worship erected in 1802-3, and which now stands on the west side of Franklin Street. It is known as Rutherford's Hall and is used as a village town hall. It is a grand, old, well preserved church edifice. Services were continued in this building until 1878. In 1843 the Congregational Church united with the Congregational Association of Southern New York.

The people desiring to continue worship as Presbyterians built a new house of worship on Center Street, near the old cemetery, one square west of Franklin Street, the main street of the village. It was a substantial building and was used by the Presbyterians until 1878 when the Congregationalists and Presbyterians merged and continued as a Congregational Church. The Presbyterians ceased their activity at this time. The services were held in the

THOMAS PARSONS

Center Street building which was enlarged. On Sunday, Feb. 3, 1918, this building was destroyed by fire and has not been rebuilt. The services are being held in the Baptist Church.

The Parsons family were members or worshipers in the Congregational Church prior to 1826 and subsequent to 1878. They were Presbyterians during the activity of that Church.

ALFRED PARSONS

ALFRED⁴ PARSONS, M.D., (Thomas³, Thomas², Philip¹), b. Nov. 20, 1797, at Enfield, Conn.; d. Oct. 24, 1865, at Troy, Pa.; m. May 4, 1834, Jane, daughter of Hon. Reuben and Sarah (Dobbins) Wilber, of Troy, Pa. She was b. Jan. 31, 1812; d. June 10, 1890. Alfred Parsons, M.D., was identified for a period of forty years with the physical, moral, and social development of Bradford County. When in infancy, in the year 1800, his father removed to Franklin, Delaware County, N. Y. He remained in his father's family until the age of eighteen, when he entered Williams College. During two years' stay there, his time was given to earnest and laborious study, and while there the foundation was laid for that learning, the possession of which, in after years, contributed so much to his prominence in the profession of medicine. The reverse in the pecuniary affairs of his father at this time compelled him to abandon the idea of acquiring a classical education, and returning home he entered the office of Dr. Dewey as a student of medicine. After remaining for some time with Dr. Dewey, he put himself under the instruction of Dr. Morse of Otego, N. Y., then one of the most skillful practitioners in the state. His medical education, as a student, was completed by attending lectures at the old "Fairfield College," where he graduated in 1825, receiving from "The president and members of the Medical Society of the County of Herkimer, State of New York," a diploma as physician and surgeon. At the same time he was made a member of the Medical Society of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of the Western District, New York.

In the year 1825, being on a visit to Eli Parsons, a paternal uncle, one of the pioneers of the county, then residing at Columbia, County of Bradford, he was persuaded to locate there for the practice of his profession, and entered upon a career of usefulness which continued for a period of forty years.

The perseverance and integrity, which are marked characteristics of the family from which he sprung, combined with his great skill and learning, brought its sure reward. Business accumulated rapidly on his hands; he attained a leading position in his profession, and in his later years had acquired a competency which enabled him to rejoice that his family need not endure the privations to which he had been subjected. Dr. Parsons was one of the founders of the Bradford County Medical Society, and took a deep interest in all its meetings and deliberations. Three times elected its president, he was honored and revered by each of its members. In matters of education he was always prominent, contributing freely to the establishment and maintenance of the old Troy Academy.

Always energetic in business, and keenly alive to the sufferings of others, the calls of his profession, whether in sunshine or in storm, at early hours or late, whether for the poor, without hope of remuneration, or the wealthy, were never disregarded.

Dr. Parsons was a man of fine personal appearance, and an easy, frank address, possessed of a kindly nature, which won the esteem and retained the confidence of all with whom he came in contact. Frequently called in consultation with the eminent physicians of his day, his cautious but sure judgment was always recognized, and he is still remembered by the older members of the profession as a skillful physician and cultured gentleman. Sound in judgment, resolute in purpose, and possessing those qualities of head and heart which gained the affection of the community, he was enabled to maintain during life the supremacy in this respect which he had early attained. As he lived, so he died, worthily. His remains are buried in the "old cemetery" at Troy, and of those who knew him in life, none read the inscription upon the plain granite monument which marks his grave, without feeling that there lies one worthy to be remembered, an example of patient self-denial, a lover of his kind, a Christian gentleman.

4. John Alfred⁵, b. Dec. 27, 1846.

SOPHIA LOUISE⁵ PARSONS, (Alfred⁴, Thomas³, Thomas², Philip¹), b. July 27, 1841, at Troy, Pa.; m. Feb. 21, 1865, at Troy to Warner Hayden, son of Nicholas MacDowell and Jemima (Potter) Carnochan. The father was a native of Scotland. Warner Hayden Carnochan was b. in Troy, Pa., Feb. 8, 1840. He d. June 17, 1881, in Towanda, Pa., buried in Glenwood Cemetery, Troy. Sophia Louise Parsons was educated at the Troy Academy, and the Elmira Female College. Her home was with her parents on the old homestead, one and one-half miles north of Troy, until her marriage, when she removed to the village.

Warner Hayden Carnochan was a boy bright, handsome, and of unusual mental acquirements, and as he grew to manhood, a favorite with the people of the town. Educated in the public school and the Troy Academy, he alternated his school life with labor at a trade, that of carriage trimming, and in teaching several terms of school. Always active in educational and literary affairs, he early took a prominent part in the various literary societies, debating clubs, and teachers' institutes, where he was always a ready debater, a keen and fluent speaker.

Hitting upon the profession of law, he went to Alfred University to prepare himself for professional life, and on his return in 1860 read law in the office of Judge Ulysses Mercur in Towanda, being admitted to the bar in 1861. On the breaking out of the war he became interested in the great struggle, and assisted in raising a company of men in 1862. He was made a lieutenant of Co. D., 132d Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteers. In the fall of the same year he was promoted to the captaincy of the Company. His regiment was of nine months men, and in 1863 was discharged. He was afterwards employed as paymaster's clerk in Florida. In 1864, at the second invasion of Pennsylvania, he raised a company of "emergency men," and proceeded to Harrisburg. All who were at the state capital on that occasion will recall the confusion and dissatisfaction which existed among the large body of men assembled there, amounting almost to a revolt, over the proposition to swear the men into the U. S. service for an indefinite period. Capt. Carnochan saw that something must be done to stay the tide, or Camp Curtin would be deserted, or become the scene of a disgraceful mob. Forming his company in line he told them he considered the situation a very grave one; that he should tender his services, and concluded by requesting all who would join him to take one step forward. The men stood by him, others followed their example, and order was soon restored. In the spring of 1865 he was appointed by Secretary Stanton, a quartermaster, but the war closed before he reported for duty. In June, 1865, he returned to Troy, and forming a law partnership with E. B. Parsons, Esq., entered actively upon the duties of his profession, in which he rapidly assumed a prominent place.

In 1868 he was elected District Attorney of Bradford County, and seldom has the office been filled with as signal ability. Clear-headed, accurate, with a minute and technical, as well as a general, knowledge of his profession, he was orderly and methodical in his work, and had an extensive acquaintance with prominent political and other personages throughout the State. His knowledge was not a dry array of facts, but was replete with freshness and pertinent illustration. He sometimes lectured in a delightful style, and was in constant demand to supply political speeches during campaigns.

The year 1875 found him a resident of Towanda, and partner with W. T., later, Senator Davies. With variable health he pursued his profession, discharging a vast amount of work, and gaining reputation as one of the strongest and brightest minds in the bar of the county. His social qualities were of a high order, and he received and deserved the reputation of an honest, upright professional man, a warm friend and excellent citizen, and a true man.

At the age of nineteen he left Troy to begin his business life in the West; first residing at Minneapolis and later at Huron, Sioux Falls, St. Paul, Detroit and St. Louis. In 1905 he moved to Philadelphia, and later to Harrisburg, where he resided until the time of his death. With the exception of the first year or two after leaving Troy, his whole business life was devoted to the sale of agricultural implements, principally as a branch manager or general agent. His connection has been with large manufacturers, including the Walter A. Wood Harvester Company, and D. N. Osborne & Company. In 1900 the latter company sent him to Europe and South America on an important business mission. The old companies were absorbed by the International Harvester Company of America, for whom he was General Agent of the Osborne division at the time of his death. He was of a retiring and unassuming nature. He despised hypocrisy, deceit, and injustice of all kinds, and as a citizen his influence and votes were always on the side of clean politics and civic righteousness. In business he was energetic and tactful, and his natural ability, combined with his moral virtues, gave him the esteem of his superiors, and the love of his subordinates. He was generous, always finding opportunities to help others, and never self-seeking.

gines, and the name changed to Troy Engine & Machine Company. Mr. Parsons being the sole owner of the business, in 1917 admitted his sons, Thomas W. Parsons and Wilber H. Parsons, also Arthur R. McMahan, to the official management and partial ownership. The business was incorporated at this time. The product of this business has been shipped to all parts of the globe.

In 1859 Alfred Parsons built the new family home on the southern section of the farm. While living on the farm, Mr. Parsons was interested in its management, and the improvement of the property. He co-operated with the Troy Farmers' Club, in 1882, in locating the Troy Fair on a part of the Parsons homestead, Alparon Park, and took an active part for a number of years in the Troy Agricultural Society, which succeeded the Troy Farmers' Club in 1898. Mr. Parsons was chosen a commissioner to the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church which met at Kansas City in 1908.

The following brief tribute by his pastor, Rev. Edward P. Morse, is added at the request of Mr. Parsons' family:

"Twenty-eight years of intimate association with Elder John A. Parsons have confirmed and deepened my early impressions of the rare qualities of the man. In all these years he has never failed me.

"In sympathetic understanding, in wise counsel, in ready co-operation, in kindly appreciation, in unfaltering fidelity to his duties as a church officer, and in generous support of every interest of the church, he has been an unfailing source of joy and strength during my pastorate.

"His high standing in the community as a business man and a citizen, the respect and affection of his fellow townsmen of all classes, his unassuming dignity and sincere friendliness of manner, and his uncompromising integrity of character, have united to render his services to the church and to the cause of religion of inestimable value. What his life has meant to the community and to the church is fully known only by the Master, Whose he is, and Whom he serves."

At the outbreak of the War of 1812, his patriotism induced him to enter the American army, wherein he did gallant service, and was rewarded with the position of paymaster and first lieutenant. At its close he returned to the quiet life of farming. In 1824 he was elected sheriff of Bradford County, and in 1830 State senator for the district comprising the counties of Bradford, Susquehanna and Tioga, serving a term of four years. As a lawmaker, he was cautious, prudent and honest, and favored all legislation which tended to develop the resources of the State and advance the general welfare of its citizens. In March, 1845, he was commissioned an associate judge of the county by Governor Shunk, a position he filled till December, 1849. He was a presidential elector on the Democratic ticket in 1856, and cast the vote of the district for Buchanan and Breckinridge. He filled the office of State inspector of prisons by appointment of Governor Wolf, and was also a member of the State board of equalization, discharging the duties of that office with such impartiality and justice as to give general satisfaction to the people.
